CHAIN HIM UP.

That stupendous nuisance, Parson Downs, of Boston, surpassed all his previous performances on Sunday by reading to a crowded house the confession of a female member of his church, in which she declared herself guilty of improper intimacy with a certain deacon, spoken of as "a prominent brother" by the parson, who has been very active in trying to bring Downs to justice.

It is said the woman who made the confession was present when it was read and evinced great enjoyment of the occasion on which she announced to the world her shame. There will be a general disposition to discredit the story, considering the circumstances under which it was given to the public.

Boston ought to find some way to dispose of Downs, even if she has to treat him as she did that famous cargo of tea a hundred odd years ago. As for the woman referred to, a duckingstool would answer very well for her.

SAM JONES AGAIN.

Sam Jones is making the beautiful groves and peaceful vales of Loveland, near Cincinnati, fairly resonant and sulphurous by opening the mouth of the Bottomless Pit so wide that Heaven only knows how anybody is to keep from tumbling into it. So near the city, too, it is positively dangerous. Sam says in his shocking way: "Every old sinner takes his brimstone with him to Hell to burn himself with." And again: "When a body's got nothing else to do, he sets down and goes to lying about Sam Jones, but I've done quit caring what folks say about Sam Jones." And yet again: "If you play progressive euchre you are a blackleg, I don't care whose husband or wife you are." Now, Samuel these be monstrous fibs you are telling, and if you don't roast for it some day it will be because divine justice is so diluted with mercy as to be utterly worthless for corrective purposes. Some people have about done quit earing what Sam Jones says,

WHAT ABOUT RASURES?

While all this fuss is being made about Cutting what is being done about Rasures? Nothing apparently. And yet Rasures was guilty of no offense worse than supplanting a Mexican Justice of the Peace in the affections of a Mexican senorita, for which he was shot without trial, while Cutting, not content with publishing a libel on Mexican soil, for which he was very properly fined, published it again on the American side and circulated the papers himself on the Mexican side, thus repeating the libel in contempt of court. It looks as if the United States Government might yet have to retreat from its position in the Cutting case, while nothing has been done in the Rasures matter, and a cowardly assassination remains almost unnoticed. Has Uncle Sam gone off on the wrong foot again?

THE GREASER EXECUTER.

Capt. Mondragon, who is a Mexican Ranger. and enjoys the poetical title of "judge of the cord" (English, hangman), who murdered Rasures, killed another man last week. The people on the border have lost count of the number of men who have been put away by this Mexican captain, judge and executioner, who seems to have been somewhat appropriately named, who could very properly drop his first syllable. It seems to us that this peaceable and law-abiding citizen is a person to whom the Mexican government should turn its attention. The prompt and effective suppression of Mondragon would change the whole aspect of affairs on the frontier, and may save a great deal of worry and perhaps bloodshed in the

A TRAGIC FROLIC.

The nude body of a woman was found floating in the Mississippi river, near the Illinois shore, six miles below Hannibal, Mo., last Saturday. W. W. Aldrich, a justice of the peace of Pike county, held an inquest on the body, but developed no facts, and the case remained a mystery until Tuesday, when L. C. Evenden of Hannibal, whose wife was missing, went down to the place and identified the body as hers. He then went to Mrs. Anna Hazen, a neighbor with whom she was last seen alive, and, demanding to know something concerning his wife's death, gleaned from the woman the following startling story: On last Thursday morning the two women left home, and, going to the river, got into a skiff with Robert W. Cash, one of the most prominent business men of the city, and recently candidate for mayor on the Republican ticket, and R M. Cheesman, another business man. They rowed down the river to an island about three miles below town, where all four of the party undressed and went in bathing. Mrs. Hazen was the only one of the party who could swim. Mrs. Evenden waded out into deep water, and the undertow getting too strong for her she lost her footing, struggled in the water, and sank without uttering a cry. The men pulled the skiff out to where she was seen to go down, but after feeling around with ours for the body, failed to find it. They then brought Mrs. Hazen over to the Missouri shore, and she walked home. While they were crossing the river Mrs. Hazen threw Mrs. Evenden's clothes into the river. Cash and Cheesman came home in the skift together, but being frightened at the fatal result of their frolic, and thinking probably the body would never be found, they kept the matter quiet. The morning papers created a sensation by publishing Mrs. Hazen's story in full. Mr. Cash, when interviewed by a correspondent, did not deny the story of Mrs. Hazen, but promised to make a written statement of the whole affair in a day or two. They are both married men, Cash being about 50 years of age and father of an interesting tamily. He is now chief of the Hannibal fire department, and a man of wealth and prominence. No affair since the Cruikshank-Godfrey scandal of 1880 has created such a social sensation.

A COLORED MAN'S WHITE WIFE ELOPES WITH A DARKEY.

A case of miscegenation exists in Alley C, in the Second Ward of Wheeling, W. Va. Robert Mason, an aged and hard-working colored man, lives in this hy-way, where he is the owner of considerable property. About a year ago Mason visited Greene county, Pa., where he became infatuated with a pretty and petite white maiden, who he finally married, much against the will of the parents of the girl, an elopement being made a necessity before the bands were securely tied, and Mason brought his wife to Wheeling, where her pretty face attracted considerable attention which finally resulted in the arrest of the couple. On showing the marriage certificate they were finally released from jail. Since this incident the woman has been drinking heavily, losing as a consequence all traces of her former beauty. About two weeks ago, Eli Banks. a worthless colored man, bailing from Pitisburg, began to frequent Mason's house, finally persuading Mrs. Mason to elope with him. The other evening on Mason's return from work he found his wife had disappeared, taking with her all of his clothes and a large sum of money he had been boarding. Meson located his wife at Steubenville, where she was an inmate of a low dive, and going up coerced her into returning to him through threats of prosecuting her him through threats of prosecuting her term thery. The couple are still living together and with the still living together and remain quiet. The dusky fellow who word Mason's clothes away and had charge of the money is non cat as are the articles and cash.

A HEADLESS TRUNK IN A SHOE BOX.

|Subject of Illustration. |

Three citizens of Wallingford, Conn., Edward and Joseph Terrill and Joseph Samson, were walking about three miles west of the center of Wallingford in the farm district, the other afternoon, when they dis covered a shoe box under a clump of bushes. The manner in which the box was hid aroused their suspicions and they burst it open, exposing the headless trunk of a human body. The legs and arms were cone and had been backed off as though by a batchet. The trunk had been packed in straw and tar paper. Efforts were made to ascertain the identity of the re mains, but without avail. Dr. McGaughey thinks that the body is that of a man between thirty-five and forty years of age, and that he has been dead between five and ten days. The box in which the body was packed is thirty inches long and twelve wide. No marks indicating violence were found on the trunk. Blood was found on the inside of the shoe box. The box was labeled, "One half pair men's seamless Cong. one half. Ds machine sewed, six to ten, five wide, French tie, fine stitched. No. seven thousand one bundred and forty-nine. No. one thousand one hundred thirty-eight."

CONCEALING A GUN.

Sharpers have a very clever way of concealing a pistol so as to defy a searcher. Instead of carrying it in the hip-pocket, they place it under the arm-pit, so that when standing erect, the arm close against the sides, detection is difficult. A strap passes over each shoulder, across the back and under each arm, and it is placed in position much the same way as a man puts on a waist-coat. The pistol holder is fastened to the portion of the strap just under the arm, and is allowed to swing vertically, kept steady by the arm when required, and especially when the searching process is

Two Prisoners Drowned.

Saturday week Alfred Hicks and William Taylor vere arrested at Slidell, St. Tammany parish, La., for threatening the life of a telegraph operator at that place. The other evening the men, in charge of deputy sheriffs, passed through New Orleans on their way to Covington, where the parish jail of St. Tammany is located, and where they were to be confined while awaiting trial. The deputies and their prisoners left on the steamer New Camelia, which runs across Lake Pontchatrain and up the Ichfuncta river to Covington. The prisoners were handcuffed together, and at about 9 o'clock at night, as the boat was proceeding up Schfuncta river, they jumped overboard in an effort to escape. The wheel of the steamer struck them and swept them under and they were not seen

An Umpire Mobbed at Charleston, S. C.

When the Savannah Club went to the bat in the last half of the ninth inning of the baseball game of Aug. 5th, the score stood 3 to 1 in favor of the Charleston Club. Savannah scored a run and subsequently had the second and third bases manned. At this point the man at the bat hit to first, and seeing the bopelessness of his case stopped running. The home team, thinking that Savannab had given up the game, came in, and then the Savannah batter trotted leisurely to first base, and Savannah scored two more runs, which were allowed by the umpire, Edward S. Hengle, This decision infuriated the crowd. But for the earnest entreaties of the President of the home club, more than the efforts of several police officers, Hengie would have been severely injured if not killed by the crowd of infuriated spectators who rushed upon the diamond.

Mother Instinct.

A mother showed remarkable presence of mind in preserving the lives of her children, at Sea Island City, N. J., when her house was blown down during the recent storm. The lady whose name is McLaughlin said that she felt the house rocking and was about preparing to leave and go to a neighbor's when she felt the braces give way and the house being raised. She thoughtfully threw herself upon the floor and drew her three children to her, which action no doubt saved the lives of all, for had they been standing all would have been crushed. After the fall of the house, by the aid of the constant lightning, one of the boys was enabled to make his way between two trunks, but Carl refused to leave his mother until the baby, which was in the cot, had been found. He had groped about and at last found the infant nearly dead. Mother and chidren then made their escape. A second after they left, the back part of the house fell over upon the spot from which they had just escaped. Mrs. Mc-Laughlin and the children were taken in by the neighbors and cared for. The mother then became very weak and swooned.

Attempt to Rob a Train.

Another attempt to rob the express train on the Lousville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad was made early the morning of Aug. 5. When the north bound train was about two miles south of Bainbridge Ky., Baggage Master John P. Winchester and Express man Frank C. Perkins were sitting in the express and baggage car half dozing. A rap was heard at the door. Winchester, thinking it was the conductor, opened the door, and as he did so a stout stranger, with a pistol in each hand, thrust himself into the car and began firing upon the baggage man. Almost at the same moment Perkins sprang forward and with his revolver answered the shots of the desperado. The latter turned suddenly as if hit and leaned from the train without securing anything.

At the same instant Winchester staggered back in the car and sank into a chair. Perkins ran to him and found the blood pouring from a wound in the breast near the right side. The ball had passed entirely through the body and came out just under the right shoulder blade. Whether it pierced the lung Perkins could not tell positively. The appearance of the wound showed, however, that it was from one of the shots fired by their assailant. Winchester was left at Logansport for medical attention. He lives in New Altany, and is a brother of Boyd Winchester, of Louisville, Ky., now United States Minister to Swit-

Why Did She Shoot.

Romney, W. Va., whose citizens were greatly excited over the tannery murder last May, are again disturbed by another murder in their town, which occurred the other morning. Miss Ann Offner, a young woman about eighteen years old, shot and instantly killed Benjamin Brooks, aged fortythree years. Brooks was supposed to be her husband by a number of persons in that neighborhood, although at the time of shooting Miss Offner resided with her father on a farm a short distance from Rompey. Brooks was said to be a dissolute and worthless character with no stated home, and roamed around picking up odd jobs at carpentering. The ball struck Brocks in the forehead and passed through his head, killing him in-

Some time last year Brooks, accompanied by Miss Offner, went to Cumberland, where a mock marriage was performed. They returned to Hampshire county, and took up their residence on the banks of the Little Capon river, living as man and wife. This state of affairs leaked out, and presentments were made aud judictments found against them for inlicit conabitation. Pending the action of the Grand Jury, the woman returned to the home of her parents. Her story is in substance as follows:

"On the morning, when out on horseback after the cows, Brooks met ber and endeavored to induce her to dismount, which she refused to do. Then Brooks, putting his hand behind him, said, 'If you don't I'll kill you.'

She had a pistol, and immediately drew it and shot bim; then she galloped off. A person who was near beard the shot, and saw ber ride away. He investigated, and was horrified to find the corpse of Brooks. He at once gave the alarm, and the body was removed. At the inquest evidence was adduced which conflicted with the statement of the girl. It goes to show that she did dismount, and bad acceded to the wishes of her paramour.

Louis Mayer, alias Hauerschmidt.

Louis Mayer, alias Louis Hauswirsh, alias Louis Hauerschmidt last February skipped secretly from Red Bluff, Cal., where he ran a saloon, taking with nim in his flight his wife's silverware and jewelry. He sailed for Germany, from whence he returned about the first of June and married a huxom German girl named Ursula Herr, in this city, about the middle of the same month, whom he deserted in Philadelphia, not forgetting to carry off the girl's boodle. About the first of July he was married again to Hermine Lux, a widow at Burlington, Iowa, whom be played for all she was worth, and left her in St. Louis on the tenth of July to look out for herself. An excellent portrait from a photograph of the holy terror appears at the head of this column.

Eloped With a Chicago Scamp.

Miss Madeline Kessler, a twenty-two-year-old heiress of many accomplishments and striking beauty, has created a sensation on the South Side, Chicago and grieved her widowed mother by eloping with Altred Rickner, alias "French Fred," a notorious character well known in Fourth avenue. He is fortyeight years of age and the husband of Mme. Philomena Choquette, whose name engraved on a silver plate embellishes the door of a white front in the gavest quarter of Fourth avenue. He was married to this woman June 29, 1885, and has since been a pensioner on her generosity. Both are French Canadians and originally came from Montreal. How "French Fred," who is a sinister-looking man, secured an introduction to Miss Kessler and won her confidence, is a piece of knavery inexplicable to her friends.

Peter Kessler, the young lady's father, was a flour merchant of State street. He died about three weeks ago, leaving an estate valued at 2200.000. He had been a resident of Chicago for thirty years or more, and was regarded as an old settler. Madeline is his only daughter. Miss Kessler has one brother, who is a clerk in the Pension Office at Washington. She was always quiet and innocent in manner, and never had many gentlemen friends. She never slept away from home a night in her life. It is known that the eloping couple left on a Michigan Central train, probably for Canada. The girl took none of her clothing and no money with her.

Shot His Cousin and Himself.

S. S. Tottman, aged forty, a farmer worth $200,000, living near Sharon, ten miles west of Akron, Obio, tied by his own hand August 5, but not thrice wounded his cousin, Thomas G. Briggs, a wealthy farmer neighbor of his. About six years ago John Briggs, a wealthy Californian, an uncle of the victims, died, leaving to his three children, all under twelve years of age, an estate worth upward of $75.000. The children came to Sharon to live in the tamily of Tottman, who was made their guardian and administrator of the estate. Two years ago Maria, the eldest of the children, then about sixteen years old, began to be the subject of gossip at Sharon. Soon after she went to Cleveland, and her emaciated appearance on her return confirmed the scandal which had been

Last June Maria again became a mother, and soon after died. The child was taken to Cleveland. Rumor was busy, but not until recently was Tottman, who has a wife and child, charged with the paternity of the dead girt's offspring. Thomas Briggs had long been Jealous of Tottman's administratorship of their uncle's estate, having from the start desired to handle the property himself. Recently be obtained information from California which confirmed his suspicion that the estate had mysteriously dwindled, and armed with these facts and the evidence of Tottman's alleged im morality he threatened to make an exposure of the whole matter unless Tottman resigned as administrator. The hostilities which arose from this state of things culminated when Tottman, under pretext of making out some papers, induced Briggs to come to his house and there fired three shots into him, each of which took probably fatal effect. Tottman then shot himself, the bullet piercing his heart. Both parties are well known throughout this region.

An Immigrant Girl's Experience

The danger surrounding the safety of young immigrant girls on their arrival in this city was illustrated one day last week at the Tombs. Jane Claudel, a handsome girl of nineteen years, stood before Justice Duffy, with her head bandaged, and accused Charles Thieron, proprietor of the Hotel France, No. 166 Washington street, with having attempted to assault her. 'The girl's story was that while coming to this country on the steamer Labourgogne she formed the acquaintance of a woman who recommended her to stay at Thieron's hotel during her stay in this city. She was going to Ottawa. Can., where a situation as music teacher awaited her. On landing she went to the botel. Being anxious to start for Ottawa immediately. Thieron took her to the depot. He, however. told her that she could get no train for a day or two, and on her way back to the hotel, the girl alleges, Thieron tried to induce her to enter a concert saloon on Fourteenth street. She refused, however, and returned to the hotel.

She says that during the night Thieron entered her room and seized her around the waist. Thieron's wife then entered the room and struck the girl on the head with a soda water bottle. Then the wife discovered that her husband was to blame and fled in alarm to New Jersey, where she has another hotel. Thieron was afterward arrested. Justy Duffy held him and the girl was committed to the House of Detention.

A CRAZY MURDERER.

o'clock. The prisoner appeared in the court-room looking very feeble, and had to be supported by two deputy-sheriffs. Mr. James W. Boyd, for the State, informed the court that he would ask to have the case continued until the November term of court, and was requested by the court to reduce the application to writing. Judge Woodson adjourned court until 4 o'clock, when Mr. Boyd presented a very lengthy petition asking the court to continue the case until next November. He stated in this application that the most important witnesses for the State were absent; that it those witnesses were present they would swear that Richmond had feigned insanity for many months and that he would further prove that at the time when Richmond claimed to be in an asylum at Kankakee, Ill., he was hiding at Des Moines, Iowa, and Tuscola, Il!. Mr. Boyd, in his petition, claimed that Richmond has felgned insanity for the purpose of killing Col. Strong.

The names of the witnesses who are absent are Andrew Rowan, John T. Sturtevant and J. C. Piece, of Des Moines, lowa. Richmond was apparently unconscious of what was going on while the application was being read, but as Mr. Boyd finished reading Richmond flew at him in a violent fit of rage. He denounced it generally, and shouted at the top of his voice: "It's a lie. every word of it; it's a lie." He had advanced within a few steps of Mr. Boyd before his guards could check him, and it took four men to hold him in his seat until he quieted down. The application for a continuance brought on quite asiprited argument which excited Richmond intensely. When Mr. Boyd with the ferociousness of a tiger, but was caught by the guards and the sheriff. There was a great deal of excitement in the court room at this time, and it was quite a while before order was restored. Judge Woodson overruled the motion for continuance, and ordered the sheriff to summon a panel of sixty jurors to Wednesday morning. It is hardly probable that the trial of the case will be commenced before Saturday, as the defence will take forty-eight hours in which to challenge the jury.

SHOT DEAD BY HIS WIFE.

An Unhappy Marriage That Culminated in a Tragedy.

Three months ago Capt. Wallace W. Hall married Miss Annie Cox, of Chicago. Early the morning o. Aug. 7 he was shot and instantly killed in his home on Wabash avenue. The fatal bullet was fired by his wife, who claimed that it was accidental and occurred during a struggle for possession of the pistol between herself and husband. Mrs. Hall is now in custody Capt. Hall until recently stood very high as an officer in the secret service of the United States. His marriage was not a happy one and he became dissipated. This resulted in his resignation being called for. Finding himself out of employment he drank more deeply still and frequently quarrels marred domestic bappi ness. Mrs. Hall claims that he frequently threatened her life, and her father. James M. C. Cox, was compelled to reside with them. Several quarrels took place on Aug. 6, and a very bitter feeling was engendered between man and wife, which culminated in the tragedy. The sound of a terrible struggle in the Hall residence, the crashing of furniture, a woman's plercing scream, and a pistol shot alarmed the neighbors, and the police were summoned. When they entered the house they were met on all sides by evidences of a life and death struggle. Mrs. Hall, clad in her night robe, was discovered pacing the floor excitedly. When questioned she pointed to a rear room. There the officers discovered the body of Capt. Hall lying face upward on the floor, blood slowly trickling from a wound in the middle of his breast above the heart. A ew feet away lay a Smith & Wesson revolver of 32 calibre, with one empty chamber. The body was cold. In this room the furniture and bedclothes gave clear evidence of a hard struggle. Capt. Hall was attired only in a night shirt. The feet lay partly under the bed, with the bead toward the center of the room, and the blood which ran from the wound in his breast over the carpet showed that he had died without changing the position in which he fell. Mrs. Hall was taken to the armory and the corpse to the morgue. The woman's father corroborates her story of the affair.

Carbsle D. Graham is the daring athlete who a few weeks ago made the voyage through the Whiripool Rapids. Niagara, encased in a parrel. It was a foolhardy attempt which many supposed was impossible, but Graham succeeded, and is now classed one of the athletic wonders of the century.

Fred Patterson, Jr.

Young Patterson has become notorious for his borse stealing trips into the State of Connecticut. In his last adventure' however, he was traced to bis wild mountain home at Stormville. N. Y., with horse and carriage belonging to Mrs. Cornelia Neal, and by a clever bit of detective work was trapped by the Connecticut officer, William N. McNamara, who has bim saiely locked up at Southington for trial. Fred Patterson is said to have come of a family of horse thieves.

Marshal John Convoy.

Many of our Western readers will remember the terrible affair which happened in Detroit, Minn., a tew weeks ago, which began by the shooting of brave John Convoy, the marshal of the town, and ended with the lynching of his brutal slayer, John W. Kelliher, alias "Big Red," a fearless desperado, and the burning of his mistress' house, etc. For a few nights. the orderly little town was in the wildest excitement over scenes of terror and confusion. On another page we print an excellent portrait of the late marshal who met his death while in the act of arresting Kelliher.

Jimmy the Kid.

James Willoughby, was born in New Market, Platte County, Missouri, September 19, 1864. When three years old he moved to the West where he has since lived. In the spring of 1883, the 15th day of May, he rode and won the championship of Wyoming, the prize being a silver mounted saddle valued at $150, and seven years old and has rode ever since. His older tellow cowboys give him the name of Jim the Kid on ecount of his being the smallest cowboy at that time on the frontier. In the summer of 1885 he won the championship of Ropers, throwing 105 feet and catching a cow, which was the best throw ever known to be made in the West.

Thomas Jenkins.

Thomas Jenkins was arrested in Lewiston, Maine, July 16th. He had for some time held the position of porter and night clerk in the Hotel Pelham, on State street, Chicago. On the night in question George Withers, the first jockey for W. S. Barnes' stables, came to the house quite late, and going to the desk requested Jenkins, the clerk, to place his valuables in the safe. He gave him a gold watch, diamond pin, diamond ring and $50 in money, or about $300 in all. In the meantime the clerk gathered together all of his effects, and, helping himself to Withers' property, disappeared during the night. The next morning the larceny was discovered, and he was traced to Lewiston, Maine, was arrested, and Detective Michael J. Crowe of the Central Station sent to bring the fugiive back to Chicago. Withers has brought suit against the hotel to recover his property.

George Russell.

George Russell, alias "White Pine," was bounced from the Palmer House, Chicago, the other evening, and ordered to leave the city by the police. Russell is one of the most accomplished and notorious confidence swindlers in the country. In 1876 he had a fight at the corner of Monroe and Clark streets in that city with his pal, known as Sir James, and the latter was killed by a thrust with a bowie knife. For this Russell terred a term of one year in the pentientiary, and the northed to the South. He was next heard from in New Orleans, where he swindled a man out of 100, at the bunko game. On the way to the station he dropped a bogus check for $1,000, drawn on the St. Paul National Bank, payable to J. B. Miller, and signed Charles Thompson. It was picked up by the officers, and is regarded as evidence that Russell has not reformed since he was last seen in these parts.

A CANNIBAL.

The Hideous Confession of Alfred Packer, Recently Convicted at Denver, Colorado.

HIS COLD-BLOODED STORY.

Something that Beats Even the Record of the Most Horrible Shipwrecks.

Alfred Packer, known as the Colorado cannibal, was placed on trial at Denver, Col., on Aug. 2. The next day Packer was placed on the witness stand and for five hours he continued his testimony. The story was most revolting, and many persons in the crowded court room were compelled to leave as Packer dwelt cold-bloodedly on the horrible details of his cannibalism. He is pale from his long confine sent, his eyes sunken, and his long hair and cadavers is cast of countenance made his personal appearance as repugnant as his story. Several times he left the thread of his story to indulge in abuse of the prosecuting counsel and the newspaper men. His abuse and oaths could not be stopped by the interference of his counsel and the commands of the Court, and Sheriff Shores and deputies were compelled to lay violent hands upon him in order to get him quieted down; then he continued his story. This was during the cross-examination when the questions of the counsel nettled him by tangling up his testimony. The testimony was practically a confession, and it differs materially from the one which he made to Gen. Adams shortly after his first arrest. That confession was that he killed his five companions during his journey from Utah to the San Juan country in Colorado in the winter of 1873 and 1874, in order to save his own; and, that subsequently, rather than starve, he had lived for six weeks upon their bodies. Packer told in substance the fol-worked in the mines there until I became leaded (dis ease common to miners); then came to Salt Lake there I worked a while in a smelter, but was still affected, and in the fall of 1873 I loined a party at Bingham Canyon for a prospecting trip to the San Juan country, in Colorado Territory. I traveled with Wm. McGrew, to whom I gave $30 for passage, and was to work for the balance of the fare. I had $25 We reached Dry Creek, near Chief Ouray's camp, in January, 1874: here the party separated, Israel Swan, George Noon, Frank Miller, James Humphreys and Shannon Wilson, Bell and myself started from Ouray's camp for the San Juan. He was old and thin in flesh, our bread gave out on the ninth day. We had only eaten one meal a day. The last few days it was storming and blowing so we could not see a few feet before us. We were keeping up toward the summit of the hills, aiming for Los Pinos Indian Agency. Bell first gave up his moccasins, and we made one meal of these, boiling them. I next gave up mine then the others. Bell had a hatchet, Noon had a gun. I carried the gun about half the time. Think we must have been out in the mountains several weeks after running out of food; the men were getting desperate and Bell seemed to be getting crazy. His eyes protruded from his head; while others complained and talked he remained silent. The men cried for salt; they did not ask for food, it was only salt, salt! We had been eating willows and rosebuds for several days baving found some in the valley where Lake City now stands. We had run out of matches and carried fire with us in a coffee pot. One day we saw game the trail was upon the mountains.

It was agreed that I should go on the trail, as I was the strongest. I took the Winchester rifle and left in the morning. In the evening I returned: I had found a bunch of rosebushes, and had a good dinner from them, but I found no game. I telt stronger. As I approached the fire I saw Miller bending over it cooking some meat. I spoke to him and he immediately rose and started for me with the hatchet. I ran back down the bluff, but fell, and while down I shot him through the side as he approached me; be fell and the hatchet dropped by me. I snatched it up and threw it at him and struck him on the head. I then went up to the camp again and found that the rest of them were dead and discovered that the meat Miller had been cooking was flesh from Humphrey's leg.

The prisoner here took books and showed the position of each body as it lay around the fire and how he had rolled each one in his blanket and left them lying as be found them.

"I staid in camp the rest of that night," he continued, "I made my camp off a short distance, and staid there for possibly fifteen days. During the time I was crazy with bunger I cut flesh from Bell's leg and boiled it in a tin cup and ate it. It made me very sick; my not know the exact distance. This was getting along

The witness then parrated at great length how he wandered from day to day over the mountains, having a supply of human flesh along, and finally in the last days of April how he found his way to a settlement where he was taken care of. The other points in Packer's testimony were that he kept his cannibalism and sufferings a secret. On recovering his strength he went to the Los Pinos Indian Agency and there met other members of the party. His first story to them was that he had become separated from his companions, and that he feared they had lost their lives. He afterwards contessed to Gen. Adams, who was in charge of the Indian Agency, that he had killed the men one at a time, and that he was compelled to do so in order to keep them from killing him.

He told where their last camp was, and offered to conduct Gen. Adams and a party of men to the scene. On the way to the camp Packer claimed that he was lost, and when he could not find the remains they accused him of murder and arrested him. He was placed in fall at Sagunche, from which he escaped six weeks later, and be was not rearrested until the spring of 1882, when he was located at Fort Fetterman, living under the name of John Swartz. At the conclusion of bis narrative Packer said:

"I am accused of robbing the dead. Yes, I did rob the dead when I cut the flesh from the bodies, preparing to start out over the range in search of civilization. I then took $5 from Twain's pocket, a $50 bill from Bell and $10 from Miller. Here is where I did wrong. I robbed the dead, but I knew the money would do my dead comrades no good, and I. being yet alive, thought money might help to save my life. I am willing to take the blame for robbing the dead, for it was wrong."

Here the prisoner denied cutting the clothing off the dead, save two cuts on the legs from which he had cut the flesh to eat. Several wit nesses have testified to the fact that the winter of 1873-74 was not an unusually severe one, and at the time of Packer's crime the mountains were full of game, which, owing to the newness of the country, was easily shot. The testimony given by Packer at this trial differs from that given at the previous trial, and there is no doubt of his

HIGHLY DRAMATIC.

A Mysterious Lady, a Lover, a Discarded Husband, a Rough-and-Tumble Fight and a Lawsuit.

About four weeks ago a lady, young and handsome, alighted from the morning passenger train on the Peoria, Decatur and Evansville Railroad, and applied at one of the leading hotels at Mount Pulaski, Ill., for board. To the people of the botel the lady gave her name as Grace Latta, representing herself as a literary woman desiring rest and quiet repose from her arduous labors. At first the select society of the little town was inclined to look upon the fair stranger with some suspicion, but the refined and ladylike behavior of the

After this I frequently ate the this distrust in a measure, and she was gradually being meat, and several times I tried to get out of the received into some of the best families. Among the country. I would climb up a mountain, but, failing to boarders at the hotel was a young man, a member of see any hope, I would return again to camp, and again Mount Pulaski's leading banking firm, Mr. Scroggin, cut flesh from the limbs of the dead men and eat it. I who immediately conceived a violent passion for Miss was about forty miles from Los Pinos agency, but did Latta, and it was the general talk of the town that a marriage would soon follow. What truth there is in this rumor is not known, but the fact that the young people were deeply attached to each other was patent to everybody, as they were seldom seen out of each

Matters were progressing most swimmingly when a sensational incident occurred which has convulsed the town to the core. The other morning Miss Latta, as usual, accompanied Mr. Scroggin to his place of business, which obliged them to pass the Scroggin hotel. In front of the hotel talking to another gentleman was seated a tall, dark stranger, attired in light clothes and a rakish slouch hat, and as Miss Latta and her escort passed by he carelessly raised his eyes. and as he met the glance of the former he seemed suddenly taken with a palsy, and remarked to his companion:

"My God! that is my wife."

The object of this exclamation in the meantime proceeded as far as the next corner, where she excused herself and returned immediately to the Scroggin botel, where she met her reputed husband. The two passed into the hotel parlors, where they remained in consultation an hour or more, after which the lady returned to her boarding house. Shortly after this a correspondent met the tall, dark gentleman, who gave his name as Harry C. Frese, of New York city. He has been engaged in the theatrical and show business as advance agent, and it was in this duty that he was called to Mount Pulaski.

in a long conversation with the correspondent he gave an account of his marital difficulties with the woman, whom he says he had not seen for two years until the meeting in Mount Pulaski, which, he added, was entirely unexpected. The substance of the above conversation Frese repeated during the day to various people in town, and it finally reached the ears of young Scroggin, with elaborate embellishments, of course. It was alleged that Frese had stated that Scroggin had been criminally intimate with his wife, whereupon Scroggin went to the hotel last night and demanded of Frese his authority for such statements. Frese declined to answer this demand, at which Scroggin struck him, and in a moment the two men were rolling on the ground. Young Scroggin had the apparent advantage in the fight that ensued, and soon had his opponent crying lustily for help. It was some minutes before the combatants could be separated. Frese was taken to his room, and at the first cursory examination appeared to have suffered no very great injury beyond a sprained wrist. Later, during the night, he was taken with severe fits, which were thought to be the result of internal injuries. Next morning prominent lawyer was summoned from Lincoln by direction of Frese for the reputed purpose of bringing a suit for damages against Scroggin. The affair has created a tremendous sensation. The alleged wife still remains quietly at her boarding place, and has nothing to say in regard to the matter further than that she does not dery having married Frese, but that she obtained a separation from him over two years ago. These proofs, she claims, will be forthcoming at the proper time, but she does not propose to gratify public curiosity by showing them now.

How a New York Broker Was Taken In and Done For.

LARKS AT THE SEA.

A Narrow Escape From a Real and Scandalous Disaster.

Down on the Jersey shore is a hotel that attracts a good many New Yorkers in the summer season. Philadelphians go there in numbers. Last Saturday two youthful and unmarried members of the Stock Exchange ran down to spend the Sabbath there. Saturday night at a summer hotel, of course, must have its dancing party, and that sort of festivity was at its height when the brave brokers arrived. Before many minutes went by one of the young men discovered a young lady with sparkling eyes who seemed lovely. She met his ardent glances, he thought, approvingly, and with all the hardthood that was needed he bowed himself within conversational distance and ventured to suggest that the chance to dance with her as his pariner would make him a perfectly happy mortal

'Not just now," she said, with a smile. "I am obliged to go to the piazza for a moment."

And she flitted away; he awaited her return confident and happy. In about one minute she appeared. returning through the wide front doorway, but she wasn't alone; two escorts, both men of satisfactory size, loomed up by her side. Wrath was on both male faces: the young woman was still all smiles, and those eyes of hers sparkled yet more brightly than ever as she met the gaze of the broker again. That gallant made bolu to advance; he was met half way. It wasn't the fair damsel that met him; it was the bigger, the burlier of her two escorts, saving this:

"I have something to settle with you, sir!"

The broker almost tumbled over at the rudeness 'What-" he began.

It looked a little as if then and there the exclusive hotel was going to have a scene of liveliness. The broker's unfinished sentence, the scowl of the other man were attracting attention.

"Come outside!" demanded the wrathful man.

The broker did just as he was ordered. Out on the plazza he was treated to an experience that fairly filled him with despair. That big, burly man said be was the brother of the young woman who had been "insulted," and he proposed to make an example of the presumptuous broker.

"I'm going to thrash you and then give the story of it to the newspapers."

This was his inspiring assurance. He looked as if he meant it. The broker's trembling was pronounced. Poor fellow-all the light suddenly seemed bowled out of life. He went to pieces; he actually pleaded for mercy, said he was willing to apologize, willing to do anything-only he did want the affair kept out of the newspapers. Wouldn't the gentleman please be merciful; he really had not meant to be rude.

The wrathful gentleman was merciful; be accepted $129-all the cash that broker had in hand-to hush the matter up. On Monday the broker turned up in Wall street, firmly convinced that that exclusive botel was in the hands of blackmailers; it wasn't till he got back to business that he contessed, even to the friend who had accompanied him, the sad experience he had encountered. When he did confess his soul was not much relieved.

The friend was convulsed with laughter, but he said not a word till yesterday; then at a lunch to which the unfortunate broker was invited, along with two or three other brokers, a yellow envelope was produced. In the envelope was $120-the very bills that the unfortunate had parted with-and the unfortunate learned, amid roars and roars of laughter at his expense, that the settlement on the piazza was "all a practical joke," that the young woman was a Philadelphia girl, and her valiant escorts were from the same town, all friends of the wicked broker friend who had with malice aforethought sacrificed his bosom chum so relentlessly. It took some wine to wipe out the memory of the episode, and it will probably take a good deal longer for the brokers who have heard the story to forget to mention it. Flirting is expensive and perilous sometimes.

A MYSTERIOUS ASSASSINATION.

About 10 o'clock on the evening of Aug. 3 G. C. Haddock, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Sioux City. Iowa, was waylaid by assassins and shot at the corner of Fourth and Water streets. The bullet entered the neck on the left side, severing the jugular vein, and passed out on the other side The reverend gentleman staggered a few steps and fellinto the gutter, dying in a few minutes. There were three or four persons with the one who fired the shot, and all quickly disappeared in the darkness, and no arrests have been made. The causes leading to the shooting are prosecutions against saloon-keepers recently inaugurated, in which Rev. Mr. Haddock was a leader. Up to within a short time there had been no move ment against the saloons, and it was thought by the liquor element that none would be made, and the recent move in that direction caused consternation and alarm among them. The most respectable of them accepted the situation and recognized the hopelessness of resistance if an organized movement was made against them. Some of the lower classes maniiested an ugly spirit, and it is said threats were made against the leaders in the prosecutions. This feeling was intensified when, a few days ago, proceedings were opened in the District Court against about fifty saloons. Rev. Mr. Haddock was the principal witness and was very active in procuring evidence, and was on the stand daily testifying in different cases.

Open threats had been made against him, and many thought he was unnecessarily exposing himself, but he laughed at the fears of his friends and went boldly on with the work he had set out to accomplish, not seeming to have any tear of violence. The fatal evening be secured a buggy at Merrill's livery stable, and, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Turner, pastor of the West Side Methodist Episcopal church, went to Greenville, a suburb, where a saloon or two were in operation. He returned about 10 o'clock, leaving Turner at home. and took the buggy back to the barn alone. He then started for home, and when only a short distance from the stable, and while crossing Water street in the full glare of a street lamp and electric light, he was approached by three or four men, one of whom fired the faial shot. Rain was falling at the time, and the assassins disappeared in the darkness without being recognized.

The affair has caused a deep feeling of indignation in the community, and all law-abiding citizens denounce the dastardly crime in unmeasured terms.

A coroner's inquest is now proceeding with closed doors, and it is thought some sensational developments will be made before its conclusion.

PADDY RYAN'S VICTORY.

Subject of Illustration.

Paddy Rvan, accompanied by a prominent business man, entered "The Store," Chicago, Ill., at about 9 o clock the other evening, held out his hand to Parson" Davies, and said:

"Let's be triends." Mr. Davies accepted the proflered hand, shook it warmly, and said something about a yellow label to the bartender. It was the first time in two years the two men had crossed palms. While they were tonst-ing their renewed friendship, Duncan C. Ross, the athlete and swordsman, entered the place. With him was a large, stalwart young man whom he introduced as "Mr. Harrison, of Canada." The new comers were informed of the friendly celebration, and were invited to join in the festivities. They did so, and numerous other friends came in and joined them. Finally, when the glasses had been sparkling for some time, Ross startled the party, about thirty in number, by proclaiming in a loud, aggressive tone that he had an unknown, a raw, green man from Canada, who could "lick" anybody in Chicago, bar nobody, for $2,000 a side, and that he would put up $1,000 forfeit then and

"Will you let me in on that?" eagerly asked Ryan. "Yes; you or anybody else," replied the brawny Ross.

"I'll take that. I can lick any man in the world," said Ryan. "How is it, Davies, does it go?"

"Well," said Davies, "I don't know any unknown in Canada that can fight any good man, and I'll back you, Paddy, if you'll fight him."

More wine and talk followed, and eventually the money was put up in the hands of the editor of a sporting journal, Mr. Davies and Ross each producing $1,000 as a forfeit, with the agreement that the additional $1,000 was to be forthcoming at 3 o'clock in the asternoon, at which time Ross was to declare his unknown, and the fight is to come off, with or without gloves, at an early day.

The money posted, the wine flowed more treely than before. Ross finally left the place, leaving his friend Harrison behind. Almost immediately Ryan turned to Harrison and asked threateningly:

"Are you the unknown ?"

"I won't say whether I am or not, but I can fight," Harrison replied botly.

The two men wanted to fight where they stood, but Mr. Davies interfered, and suggested that they adjourn to an alley. Both men expressed a willingness to fight it out on the sidewalk. Seeing that they were determined to come together, Mr. Davies volunteered to find them a place. They accepted the offer after Harrison had received assurance from Davies that be should have fair play. They repaired to a neighboring alley, where a solitary gaslight faintly illuminated the place. They were accompanied by eight friends of Mr. Davies. The eight men formed a ring, and Ryan and Harrison threw off their coats, and at the call of "Time!" sailed in with bare knuckles. They went at it tooth and toe nail, rough and tumble. Up and down, first one and then the other on top, the two giants hammered away at each other, while the eight spectators remained absolutely silent so as not to attract the attention of the police.

For more than a minute the strange battle was kept with a fierceness that knew no restrictions, when Harrison uttered the first word spoken by either of them after the fight began. That word was "Enough!" At that time he was prone upon his back and Ryan was astride him, and had his arms pinioned down beneath his knees, while he was raining blows into

When Harrison cried "Enough!" Ryan jumped up lightly and helped his tallen foe to his feet, Harrison's right eye was closed, but he said that he was perfectly satisfied, as everything had been perfectly square and he had been given an even chance. The Trojan received the congratulations of the eight spectators. The party then returned to "The Store," and Paddy's victory was celebrated in due form. It is believed that Harrison is the unknown on whom Ross posted so large a forfeit.

Ada Shannon, or Lansing, the girl who testified against the defendant in Capt. Brinckerhoff's divorce suit in Poughkeepsie, and who suddenly disappeared from that city, came to Newburgh and took a room at 294 Montgomery street. August 2d, she went to a picnic, and returned to her room about midnight. While sinng at a window she was shot at twice and hit in the forehead with a biz stone. She told City Marshal Maher that the man who shot at her was Henry Baum of Fishkill, an acquaintance. She said that she saw Baum from her window walking up and down with a revolver in his hand, and that after he had thrown the sione at her he shot at her twice in rapid succession. One of the bullets made a furrow in her cheek. A warrant was received from Poughkeepsie for her arafter the shooting, and the city has been searched all day for her without success. She is wanted in connection with further Brinckerhoff proceedings, and it s believed she has gone to Port Jervis, where she tormerly lived.

THE POLICE TOOK THE POT.

Some Excellent Hands Held in a Poker Game at Long Branch.

A poker story is laughed over in all the New York clubs. The action of the narrative is located in Phil Daly's gambling house at Long Branch, and the time was just two minutes before the "boy detective" and his cohort of policemen burst through the window and proceeded to gather the players and playees. Of the x men who were running the principal poker game, three were New Yorkers of wealth, and one is a wellknown stock broker, who owns a yacht and is an offier of the New York Yacht Club, The three New Yorkers and three friends sat down to a quiet little game of $25 limit on the night in question. They had carefully fostered a jack pot for five rounds, when just before the police arrived the yacht owner silently placed a green chip on the little heap of ivories, signifying that he opened it for $25-the limit. "I'm in," indifferently remarked a second New Yorker, putting up the needful.

"Me, too," said the third Gothamite, who was the funny man always found in poker games, as he threw out the necessary chip.

Two of the remaining three in the game joined in, then the last man made everybody sit up very straight and looking alive by "seeing" the opener, and saying: "I'll lift you just another twenty-five."

"See you and go you another," eagerly remarked the man who had opened it. This made every man think the opener was too eager by half, and that he was bluffing; so they all looked knowing and came in. The pot, according to the nearest calculation now obtainable, had something like $472 in it.

"I'm pat," softly said the opener, when the draw commenced. The dealer looked derisively at him, and, being the funny man referred to, remarked persuasively: "Now hadn't you better take a few?"

Then one man drew two cards, another man one. another three, another two, while the sixth, the man who had performed the enlivening teat of "raising it back," stood pat.

"I'll try $10," carelessly said the opener after seeming to study his band. This caused a wicked laugh among his companions.

"I'll see you and go you-

The bet was never finished, for at this precise juncture the police burst into the room like a tornado. The lights went out in a flash, and, struggling and swearing, the wealthy men abandoned chips and games in the desperate struggle to escape. The greater part of the mob bad got out, when one light shed a dim luster on the disordered room. Phil Daly quickly saw the three New Yorkers in the grip of the legal minions. Then it was that he made a deliberate assault on the officers, and, aided by his servants, succeeded in reeasing the three millionaires, who promptly fled.

The trio of friends soon gathered in the apartments of one of their number and exchanged notes. All were minus bats. One had a very red eye, warranted to turn black in a few hours, while another's coat was torn up the back. This latter was the yacht owner.

"What a confounded pity the police came just then," remarked the rash man who had "raised" the pot. Boys, I had you dead on that hand. The pot was mine, for I held three aces and two kings."

"Mine was four little deuces, my friend," exclaimed the second. with a triumphant laugh. "I drew three cards to the pair and made it."

The yacht-owner, who had been gazing at the two with a weary sort of a look, then said, "Where are your hands, gentlemen ?"

"Where are our hands? Why, man, do you suppose we could hold on to cards in a shindy like that?" "Well, I got hit with a chair, knocked down twice, and rolled around on the floor with three or four men on top of me and I kept my cards," calmly remarked the yacht owner. "There was only one other thing that I thought of."

What was that ?" "I thought how d--d lucky it was for you fellows the police came when they did-

And he laid down five ragged and twisted cards, which his two companions eagerly seized and smoothed out in a row on the table.

It was a diamond straight flush, king high, and everybody agreed that it was no wonder the yacht owner clung to it through the whole of the exciting riot. But it didn't win the pot. The yacht owner says the police got that.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY.

"Amateur photography has taken quite a bold 'There's a class of about twenty girls who place themselves under Professor Nicol's charge and go out to the suburbs once a week making views. Nicol is a splendid teacher, and some of his pupils are doing good work. There's another feature of this amateur photographing craze, though, that is even more interesting. I mean the temptation there is in a house where there are two or three girls and a camera to do something original. When girls are in love with their own left shoulders, as Katisha was, or the shape of their arms or of their feet, they are very apt to steal up into the garret, where there is a good deal of light and privacy, and enjoy them elves at picture-making. one posing while the other manipulates the camera. A young lady friend of mine came to me the other day with the photograph of a pair of feet, which she laughingly said were her own, but she had nerve to make the admission, for those feet were fearful and wonderful to behold. As a matter of fact, the young lady had very pretty feet, but they were spoiled by the lack of skill on the part of the operator.

"My wife is an amateur of considerable reputation among her lady triends. They know that I have given her instruction, and so they go to her for advice. She tells me that private posing is all the rage, and that there are some very pretty pictures floating about among girl chums. This is dangerous work, though, and I know of several cases where families heretofore friendly have been plunged into deadly fends on on account of these photographs and incautious exhibition of them to other people. I could tell you a very good story if I dared, about a love match which was broken off in this way. Without mentioning any names, a young lady living on Michigan avenue was engaged to a very estimable gentleman. A friend of hers was also an admirer of the same man, and was not a little discomfited when she heard of the engagement. But she neither broke her beart nor quarreled with her rival. She became an amateur photographer, invited the girl to pose for her, secured a negative just to her liking, and then plotted to have a friend of hers show it to the young man. Her little game worked to a charm. The picture was not improper at all, only a little injudicious, but engaged young men are proverbially particular about their fiancee's conduct, and this one was no exception to the rule. In two days the engagement was at an end. The tair schemer is now living in hope, while the victim is crying her eyes out and trying to ascertain the cause of her whitom lover's fick leness."

How a Young Lady Lost Her Pet Dog and Her Temper.

A nicely dressed young lady of about eighteen sum mers and a yellow dog walked leisurely down Howard street the other morning, says the Baltimore Herald. The dog had a blue ribbon around his neck, the other end of which was tied to the lady's right wrist. The dog was about four feet ahead of the lady. She was a pretty lady. She didn't have a freckle on her face nor a wart on her nose, nor a piece of black court plaster on her cheeks. She was what a Charles street dude would call a "daisy" or a "lab-de-dab."

The dog wasn't pretty. He was a vicious-looking cur, and apparently of that species that a father would let loose upon a young man whom he didn't want to come a courtin' at his house. When the pair got to Lexington street the lady wanted to cross the street, but the dog wanted to go eastward on the north side of Lexington street. Then there was a cont st which attracted a large crowd and caused considerable amusement. The dog held his way so persistently that the lady couldn't unloose the ribbon from ber wrist, and as they turned the corner both struck against the Italian peanut man and burled him up against his little street store.

As the Italian struck the stand it was upset and the falling woodwork struck an old lady passing. Then there was a mixture of old lady, dog, voung woman, Italian oaths, bananas and peanuts and lots of mirth for those who witnessed the scene. Finally a small boy, by cutting the ribbon, parted the lady and the dog. The lady arranged her bustle and got into a car going north, She didn't whistle for the dog and he went off down Lexington street, crashing into everything he met until he was captured in the net of a colored dog catcher. The cur is dead, but when the lady goes out promenading again there will be no dog in the

RIOT AT A FUNERAL.

Saturday week afternoon the body of Willie Gleason, a six-year-old boy who was drowned recently in Michigan, was taken to Calvary Cemetery, Chicago, for burial. The funeral was from the widowed mother's residence, No. 284 Loomis street, and was accompanied by over one hundred persons. Mrs. Gleason owns a lot in Calvary, and it was ber desire to bury her son by the side of her husband. Daniel Gleason and James McNichols, brother in law and brother of the widow, respectively, had charge of the funeral arrangements. Arrived at the cemetery they discovered that they had neglected to take along the deed of the lot. Superintendent Guinea declined to permit the interment unless the deed was first produced, and called the police, it is said, to eject the party. He armed himself with a shotgun and a panic ensued among the mourners. Two of the women fainted and a stampede ensued. The gun was discharged but no person was shot. It is stated by persons of the funeral party that Guinea threatened to fire into the crowd, and that when he presented the gun James McNichols knocked it from his hands, thus discharging it. The superintendent's son was armed with a horse pistol. It went off during the excitement and one of the mourners sustained a slight flesh wound in the leg. The elder Guinea was then roughly bandled by the crowd. The body was taken to the vault and placed there temporarily while the friends went in search of a warrant for Guinea's arrest. Guinea created a scene on Decoration Day, causing him to be made the subject of free newspaper comment.

AN EAST BOSTON WOMAN DRAWS A $15,000 PRIZE.

An item was published in one of our daily papers the other day, stating that a married woman in East Boston had drawn $15,000 in The Louisiana State Lottery, and in order to ascertain the facts, our reporter made a trip to the Island Ward on Wednesday last. Upon inquiry he found that the fortunate person was Mrs. Mary E. Holmes, living at 208 Princeton street. The lady when called upon was rather reticent at first, because, as she explained afterwards, she had so many visitors making idle inquiries about her money that she had determined to say nothing more about it. She was pleased to acknowledge, however, that the story was true. She received notice of her good luck soon after the drawing, which took place at New Orleans on the 13th instant, and has now got the $15,000 through the Adams Express Company. She held onefifth of ticket No. 81,375 which drew the first capital prize of $75,000. Mrs. Holmes is a woman of between fifty and sixty years of age, the wife of a ship caulker, and the mother of three or four grown up children. The family evidently had to live on a slender income, and this wind-fall of $15,000 is a fortune to them. The old lady is very much elated over her good luck, and she says the family will now be able to enjoy some luxuries which for many years they had to do without. She has been buying tickets for some time past, when she had a dollar to spare, and feels she is well rewarded. From all appearance, Mrs. Holmes is a thrifty housewite, and there is no doubt the money will be put to a good use. Is is unnecessary to say that her good luck has caused quite a sensation among the East Boston folks .- Boston (Mass.) Commercial and Shipping List, July 30.

The glove contest between Frank Herald and Jim off until after Herald meets Sullivan

The glove contest between Sullivan and Herald will he could a year or two ago.

After weeks of challenging and counter-challenging between the backers of John L. Sullivan and Frank Herald, arrangements were completed at the Police Gazette office for the gigantic gladiators of the fistic arena to meet face to face in for the gigantic giaduators of the usite areas to meet use to use in the orthodox 24-foot ring. The match between these prominent fixtic heroes was arranged by Edward F. Mallahan, Frank Herald, backer, and Wm. Bennett, the backer and side partner of the champion. Articles of agreement were signed for Sullivan and Herald to box six rounds, according to the Marquis of Queensberry rules. The match is to be decided at Scheutzen Park, Union Hill, S. J., on Aug. 28. The referee, timekeepers and judges are to be selected by the backers of the p horipals on the ground. Sullivan has been training for the past two weeks, and by Aug. 28 he expects to be in first-class condition. Herald will make Larry P. Mallahan's sporting house, 519 Lexington avenue. York, his headquarter; for a few days; then he go into special training at a well-known reby the sea shore. The announcement the sort by the sea shore. The announcement that this great match has been ratified, will, no doubt, create quit: a sen-sation among sporting circles throughout the country, for both men have a host of admirers. Herald has been classed by thorough and competent judges, as the best man in America out-side of the champion, and there has been a general desire among the sporting community to see them meet face to, face in the arena Herald is not only a clever, scientific boxer, but a terrific hitter has been successful in his last two essays, gaining a victory over Jim Cannon, the champion of the coal regions, and another over Mike C. Conley of Utlea, who boldly put up $100 forfeit with Richard K. Fox, and challenged any man in America to fight for $1,000 or $2,500 a side. Herald knocked Cannon out in 23 seconds. and conquered Conley in 1 minute 25 seconds, and it was by these victories and the refusal of Jack Burke, Charley Mitchell, and Dominick McCaffrey to meet him, that gave him his present , ugi-listic standing. Sullivan every one knows is the most wonderful pugilist that ever stood in the ring, his success has been unprecedcomers from both Hemispheres and defeated them, but it is the general opinion that Horald out-ranks all of Sullivan's pre-vious opponents, consequently the coming contest will be one of in-terest. We have no hesitation in stating that Sullivan will find Herald the best man he has ever met. Herald is 23 years of age, stands 5 feet 10½ inches and weighs, trained, 195 pounds. Suilivan is 28 years of age stands 5 feet 10 1-8 inches in height and trained weighs 195 pounds. Sullivan is the most muscular and probably the strongest of the twain.

There is every prospect of an important prize-ring encounter being arranged between Joe Ellingsworth, the known middle weight of this city, and Jack Fogarty, of Philadelphia, The latter's backer some time ago posted $250 forfeit with Richard K. Fox and issued a challenge offering to match Jack Fogarty against any middle weight in America, except Dempsey. for $1,000 to $2,500 a side. At the time the defi was published in the POLICE GAZETTE many supposed it was a feeler—to use the vernacular—to bring out Joe Ellingsworth; but no reply was made to the defi. The other day Patrick Riley, well known in sporting circles in this city, with Joe Ellingsworth called at the POLICE GAEKTEE office, posted $250 forfeit to cover the $250 Fogarty's backer recently posted, and left the following business-like chal-

New York, August 5, 1886.

Sporting Editor I accept the challenge of Jack Fogarty of Philadelphia, to fight according to Queensberry or London prize ring rules to a finish with small gloves for $1,000 a side. To prove I am in earnest, P Riley my backer deposits $250 to cover the same amount posted by Gus Tuthill, Mr. Fogarty's backer. I will meet Gus Tuthill at the Police Gazette office any day he may name, to sign articles of agreement. I propose to fight in a 24-foot ring, according to the Marquis of Queensberry or London prize ring rules, six weeks from signing articles, for $1,000 a side and a purse of $1.500 which is guaranteed. Richard K. Fox to be final stakeholder, and the conest to be decided with a limited number of spectators on each side to meet them to arrange the match.

After we received Ellingsworth's declaration of war. One Tuthill Fogarty's backer, was notified that the backer of Ellingsworth had posted $250 forfeit and was ready to arrange a match. Tuthill at nce called at this office and instructed us to notify Ellingsworth liminaries As soon as these facts were made known, the annous ment that Ellingsworth and Fogarty were to arrange a match for $2,000 created quite a sensation among sporting circles in this city, and a tremendous crowd filled the sporting rooms of the Police GAZETTE building to witness the rival champion middle-weights arrange a match. Ellingsworth was early on hand eager and anxious to arrange the preliminaries, but Pat Riley his backer, who is up in Hudson, telegraphed to wait until Monday, when he would be down ready to arrange the match. Gus Tuthill was on hand and said he would make the match for as large an amount as Pat Riley, Ellingsworth's backer, desired. It was then agreed to meet at the Police Gazette office Monday August 16, when articles of agreement will be signed for the men to meet. Both men hav $250 a side posted, and the match is just as good as arranged.

When Tom Cleary returned to San Fransisco from New York with Jack Dempsey it was said that he had improved wonderfully and was almost as good a man as the little Sullivan. and Martin Costello, better known as "Buffalo." was picked out to try his mettle. An athletic club offered a purse of $1,000 for then try in incide. An atmeter clue ouered a pulse of 3,000 for them to fight for, on condition that only members should witness the mill. This Cleary would not agree to, as he thought the amount was too small, and talked about $5,000 being the proper caper. The club, dropped the matter, but a fight was arranged for $250 a side and all gate receipts. The time was fixed for July 24, at Neptune Gardens, but the authorities got wind of what was going on and sent word that it could not take place. On July 26 other arrangements were made, and it soon leaked out that the men might meet at any moment. Mike Smith's saloon on Market street, San Fran o, was besieged by individuals eager to get the right the favored ones were few in number, and had to put up $10 for a big green ticket before the information was given as to where the would be decided in the Oakland theatre, Alameda. A large growd crossed the river and soon reached the trysting place crown crossed the river and soon reached the trysting piace.
A ring 16x16 had been pitched in the orchestra. Scats arranged before the footlights and in the boxes comfortably accommodated the spectators, who numbered about 100. Buffalo was on hand were counted up and aggregated $520. This sum, with $500 stakes was deposited with the state holder, a prominent theatrical man Denny Costigan and Charley Taylor seconded Cleary and Martin Murphy and Bili Delany handled Buffalo. The gloves were just at improvement on kids. Both men were in prime condition, and a long hard battle was anticipated. The betting was in favor of Cleary The mill commenced with careful sparring for fully a minute, who Buffalo let out with his left, tapping Clearly lightly in the stomach. An exchange of blows, which did very little damage, ended in a Buffalo went to the floor once, but more from a slip than but he failed to reach his mark. Buffalo was hitting straight ou and butting Cleary with his head and shoulder every chance h streak of bruised flesh on the left side where Costello had caugh and rasped him with his wrist bone. When time was called for th Capt. Thomas, of the Oakland police, who had gained ingres through a trap-door, unperceived, shouting out: "Gentlemen, this fight can't go on." No heed was paid to the warning, however, and Cleary and Buttalo rushed at each other ferociously. A clinch fol a right-hander that hit Costello in the throat. Haley sepa rated the men, but before they were clear the Buffalo got in an upper cut that took the skin from Cleary's body, from waist to breastbone, The pain and shock made Cleary groggy, and although he fought like a tiger, a blow in the neck sent him to his knees. He had hardly arisen when he went down again to a smasher in the mouth. Up again he rushed at the Buffalo and clinched. The men wrestled and delivered half-arm blows for a minute before they could be separated. Cleary's legs were trembling, and it was evident that he was done for. Costello followed him to his corner, and, with a right-hander that caused blood to gush from the side of Cleary's face, knocked his opponent down. Cleary rolled over on his back, struggled to get up, but fell back a whipped man. The fight was given to Buffaio. His backer, a Marysville sport, rushed into the ring, hugged him like a buby and kissed him on both cheeks. The excitement was so intense that for the time being all had forgotten the fact that the theatre was in the being an nan lorgotten the fact that the interact was in the hands of the police. Groups stood about discussing the battle while Cleary and Costello were dregsing in the private boxes. Finally a party headed by the manager of a San Francisco theatre walked leisurely to the front door, and essayed to pass out. "No you don't, gentlemen," said Sherifi Hale, as he placed his back against the portal, "Captain Thomas has got something to say to you." "You are all under arrest," said the Chief, "but you can take your choice, either put ap $70 ball here or walk down to the city prison with me." The announcement struck terror into the assemblage, and other doors were sough only to find them guarded by a blue-coat. The "praying band" had first taken the alarm, and beaded by their lead r, a guileless youth who came to California with Barrett's circus, climbed up in the wings and dropped out into back yards through convenient windows. "It was a trifle over thirty feet." said the leader a half hour later, as he scraped some garbaze from his Spring overcoat. 'I didn't break any bones, but my legs feel a trifie dicky.' Two ex-Sheriffs, an ex-District Attorney and a promiuent candidate for Concress from the Fifth District took chances in a high jump, and made a semi-success of the feat. The attorney's coat got caught in a nail and was split from tail to collar, and the aspirant for Congressional nors fell on his head and smashed his Derby. A Kearney street nonors fell on his heal and smashed his Derby. A Kearney street cigar dealer climbed down a trap door and got lost in the dark recesses of the basement. He crawled into daylight at noon, a sorry looking object. A few of the spectators put up their $20 pieces in preference to marching through Oakland to jail. One of the number was a saloon-keeper distinguished for his elegance in dress. He spent the remainder of the day in a vain endeavor to recover his "gilpin." as he called it.

The following are the full particulars of the great battle between Jack Dempsey and Enoch Taylor, fought in a born at Hamilton, Ontario, recently. Dempsey formerly halled from San Francisco, and now resides at Detroit is five feet 6 inches high, and weighs about 130 pounds; Dempsey is the man who fought with Harry Gilmore near Detroit early this year and was badly beaten by the redoubtable Canadian light-weight champion. Taylor is a native of England. 22 years of a.e. stands 5 feet 5 inches in height, and weighs 119 pounds. The battle was with two-ounce pals were Jack Dempsey, of Detroit, and Enoch Taylor, Hamilton, gloves Queensberry rules. It was a ten-round battle. The princi-

Both men went into the fight handicapped-Dempsey with a stiff right arm, one of the lower bones having been broken in a fight some six weeks ago; and Taylor, by lack of training. Shortly besome six weeks ago; and Taylor, by lack of training. Shortly be-fore the fight began, Taylor said to a reporter: "I haven't nad haff an bour's training for this fight. My brother is the only person in Hamilton that I care to spar with for practice, and I haven't been able to practice with him on account of an accident that happened wind won't hold out-that's all I'm afraid of." Both men stripped to the buff. Dempsey appeared to be in better condition than Taylor, his skin being pinker and his muscles apparently harder. Dempsey's right forearm was pimply and sore looking, but for the first four rounds it didn't seem to trouble him much. Taylor wore dark blue breeches and Dempsey linen ones. Taylor's se were his two brothers, who seemed to understand the business thoroughly; Fred Bell, a sparrer of local celebrity, seconded

Tre fight in detail:

Round 1—Both men spar cautiously for an opening. Taylor opens by a hard blow on Dempsey's check which makes Dempsey blush. He counters on Taylor's left car. Round ends with Dempsey forcing the fighting at the ropes. Taylor breathing hard.

2—After several rapid exchanges Dempsey lands a sledgehammer left-handed blow into Taylor's stomach. Taylor almost knocked out. Recovers himself, but spars weakly to close up round—escaping panishment by clever dodging. Round ends in Dempsey's favor.

3-Opens with a terrible blow by Dempsey on Taylor's left temple; cut appears near outer corner of eye and, a red stream trickles down Taylor's check—first blood for Dempsey. Taylor short in wind but sparring eleverly. Dempsey smiling, cool and active. Several clinehes occur, but me i break promptly when ordered by referee. Round closes with severe fighting.

4—A very tough round. Taylor recovering his wind and giving nearly as much as he takes. Taylor gets in a back blow on Dempsey's car which causes him to spin; but Dempsey gets revenge by aluging Taylor twice in quick succession on the neck and mouth. Dempsey's under lip cut and bleeding profusely.

5—Taylor looking fresher. Hitting Dempsey hard on the face; Dempsey smiles and counters with force, but his blaws begin to weaken. Dempsey's nose cut across by a slashing right-hand hit straight from the shoulder. Dempsey rains blows on Taylor's body, but the little fellow guards his bread basket well. Round ends in Taylor's favor.

6-Both sparring carefully. Taylor opens with a sweeping blow on Dempsey's left ear, which he repeats twice. Dempsey retaliates by forcing Taylor against the ropes and hitting him smartly on the cheek at short distance. Taylor smiles, and says "Some more, chests of both men are as red as beets and show bruises. are numerous in this round, and the men hit wickedly in breaking hardest fought round in the battle. Dempsey makes grand rally and tries to knock the little man out with his left, while he uses his helpless right as a guard. Taylor escapes only by his wonderful dodging. Once, coming up suddenly after a clever duck, he plants a smashing upper-cut on Dempsey's chin, which shuts up Dempsey's laws like a trap and almost lifts him off his feet. Dempsey fights wholly on the defensive in the latter part of the round, Taylor chasing him from one side of the ring to the other; but just before the round closes Dempsey lands his left against Taylor's side and makes him grunt. Round is in favor of

Towards the close Dempsey puts all his strength into a blow aimed at Taylor's ne k; Taylor ducks and gets out of the way, and the force of the intended blow careens Dempsey around; Taylor knocks him against the ropes. The round and the battle end in hard in fighting, in which some of the severest blows of the fight are

The battle began at 3:30 A. M. and was over 54 minutes later. When the fight was over Dempsey's face, neck and breast were covered with blood and his face was puffy and bruised; the only mark on Taylor's face was the cut on his left temple, but his chest and aldes bore the marks of hard punishment. It was noticed that after the fourth round Dempsey used his right arm very little, holding it in front of him on the belt. The reason was explained when the fight was over. After he and Taylor had shaken hands, Dempsey said to his antagonist: "Say, I've been fighting you ever since the fourth round with a broken arm." This was true. His right forearm, which was still weak from his last fight, was broken two places by a blow which he aimed at Taylor's neck, but which Taylor dodged and took on the head. The arm was terribly swollen. Dempsey had said nothing about his misfortune but had fought six rounds with his arm useless before him The fight resulted in a draw, the referee deciding that Dempsey had had the advantage in the first four rounds, and that Taylor had not shown sufficient superiority in the following rounds to outweigh this advantage. Both men took the decision philosophically. With the assistance of their seconds they dressed hastily; the stakes were drawn, and the crowd had dispersed before the mists had rolled away from the hillside. The fight proved that Taylor is more than a match for Dempsey in science, and can hit as hard. If the fight had been to a finish Taylor would undoubtedly have Even if Dempsey had complete use of both arms, it is probable that Taylor, with his superior skill, would prove more than a match for him. It had been arranged that the winner should get 60 per cent of the receipts, and the loser 40 per cent ; but as the fight resulted in a draw the recipts were divided equally.

DEAR SIR-In reply to the challenge in the Police GAZETTE and deposit from Mr. H. W. Staples, allow me to suggest that when he drew that $100 check upon his bankers he assuredly drew another and larger one upon "his imagination," when he states that I said I and larger one upon "ms imagination," make the period of 50, with one hand only. I would want both hands and feet too, and then I would not do it, Can Mr. Staples find any man in the world to back himself to do this with all his limbs? I will bet him $500 he can't, and I will find the birds. His challenge is simply absurd, and so it must appear to any one who knows anything about shooting. Let him name a reasonable thing, and I will immediately cover his dollars Yours faithfully, and make a match. W. GRAHAM.

The game of Lacrosse between the Toronto and New York Lacrosse Clubs at Staten Island, New York, on August 9, attracted a large crowd. The New York Club really played a fine defence game yesterday, but the good running and quick passing of its opponents was too much for it. The ball was facel at 5 o'clock by Capt. H. C. Kelly of the Irish Lacrosse Team, who was referee, and Dixon, the centre field, soon passed it to the Canadian attack field. Successive shots on their part ended in the fall of efforts of Brown and Hodge to stop the ball. Time, 4 minutes. the next bout Robinson, Popham, Brown, and Wright worked hard to save the goal, and would have done so but that a ball thrown by Sewell from the centre of the field rebounded off the cross of Hodge the New York goal keeper, to Stowe, who shot it through the pos scoring the second goal also for Canada. Time, 11 minutes. third game was the best of all, although New York's attack field had little to do. Wheeler was brought in from the attack to defend the New York goal. It was of little avail, however, for, after stopping four successive shots, Dixon made a long run, and sent the ball through the posts by a good underhand shot, making the goal for Canada. Time, 18 minutes. Fifteen minutes more of play ended in no goal, and then time was called.

The single-scull race between Edward Hanlan, of Toronto, James Ten Eyck, of Peekskill, Geo. H. Hosmer, of Boscon, and John McKay, of Boston, for a purse of $1,100, a mile and a half with a turn, was rowed off Nantasket Beach, Mass., on Aug. 9. Ten thousand persons were on the beach, and Hanlan was a strong favorite. The men were sent off at about 6%. Hanlan took the water first, and before the others had gotten under way he was nearly half a length in advance. In a few moments he was giving the other men the wash from his boat. Ten Eyck quickly fellowed and it looked as though he would give Hanlan a hard rub. McKay and Hosmer were about even, and both were rowing in good form Before the first mile had been rowed Hanlan was two boat length-34 and Hosmer and McKay were rowing 35. Although his stroke was slower, Hanlan's bost was forced along faster than the others. At the mile Hanian led by three lengths, and was rowing a 28 stroke. Hosmer had worked into second place, and was gaining inch by inch on Hanlan, and nearly overtook him. caught a "crab," and fell behind. McKay spurted into Hosmer's place. To the mile and a half the race between Ten Eyek and McKay was a warm one, but the latter reached there first, Hanlan durning far ahead of all his competitors. Homer turned about five lengths in the rear of the others. On the homestretch Ten Eyck spurted several times and endeavared to secure second place, but although he gained steadily he could not overtake McKay, Hanlan maintained a good lead to the finish. The time was: Hanlan, 21 minutes, 55 seconds: McKay, 22 minutes 5 seconds; Ten Eyck, 22 minutes 6 seconds. Hosmer's time was not taken.

Curran is to board the log at the foot of Tenth street at 10 A. M. Monday, Aug. 16, and without any assistance except a boat hook propel the log across the river to the Elysian Fields. If he falls or slips off he is to forfeit the money now deposited. Wm. NEW YORK, August 9th, 1386.

Sporting Editor: DEAR SIR :- I am prepared to match Michael Curran, of Jersey City, to cross the North river standing on a saw-log. 25 feet long. 18 inches in diamater, against any man in America, nothing but a boat hook to be used, and the latter not to exceed 25 pounds in weight. Man and money ready at the Police Gazetteoffice. Any one accepting this challenge will post a deposit with Richard K. Fox and notify me the time to meet to sign articles. Stakes to be from $100 to $250 a side, and Richard K. Fox to be final stakeholder.

WM. Snow, American Dredging Co., Jersey City. Richard K. Fox has received a letter from Belfast, Ireland. It gives the personnel of the Irish Inversational Lacrosse team recently arrived in this country. It also states that Dr. W. R. B. The news was received in the North with something akin to consternation, and the most profound sympathy is universally felt for those who are left to mourn his loss. Dr. M'Wha was a student of the Queen's College, Belfast, and after a successful collegiate career he received an ap-pointment in the Belfast Union In3rmary, which he left to go to India. Some eight years ago he took a prominent part in organiz-ing the Knock Association Football Club, which was the second in Ireland, Cliftonville being first, and he was the first man selected to represent Ireland on international matches. H. M. Johnson has at last settled all disputes in regard to the fastest time on record for 100 yards.

Henceforth Johnson's performance will rank as the best on record, because I place no faith in George Seward's 9½ sec-onds, said to have been made at Hammersmith, Eng., in 1844.

Since boxing was first introduced in America there have been very few fatal prize ring encounters, but in England every now and again I read of these matches ending fatally.

The last fatal fistic encounter was between Weeden and Walker, at Perry, N. J., while the last battle in England in which one of the combatants died was between Jimm; Highland and James Carney, in which the latter died.

A week ago there was a fatal fistic encounter at Wales. Evans and James, two well-known light weights, fought according to the new London prize ring rules. The battle ended, after thirty-two rounds had been fought, in favor of James, and Evans died from his injuries.

I understand the English international single-scull race will be rowed over the Thames championship course on Sept. 1. George W. Lee, John Teemer and Wallace Ross have entered.

The other entries are Wm. Beach, the Australian, who defeated Hanian; George J. Perkins, Neil Matterson, Peter Kemp and George Bubear. They will draw and race in pairs no man racing twice on the same day. The first prize is £1,200 and the

I was surprised to learn that Tom Cleary, Jack Dempsey's pet, of San Francisco, was so easily conquered by Buffalo Costello of San Francisco. Costello must be a promising middle-weight, for he punished Cleary terribly and put him to sleep inside of six minutes. Costello is a native of Canada. He was brought out as a boxer by Harry Maynard, and frequently figured in glove contests in Maynard's sporting palace.

Cleary was looked upon as a sure winner and was backed heavily. He was terribly punished for the short time the fight lasted.

I had an idea that Costello would win because Dempsey went to San Francisco to second Cleary, but he did not stop to see the fight or fill the contract. Demosey must have got a tip that Costello was more than a match for Cleary, and not being over anxious to second a loser or to see Cleary defeated, left for Oregon where he had a more beneficial engagement to fill and a more important contract to make than seconding Cleary.

John Banks and the "Kentucky Rosebud," both col-red, had a vicious fight at Philadelphia on Aug. 3. After 4 rounds had been fought, during which Banks lost his head, Denny Butler, the referee, gave the fight to the "Rosebud." Banks protested against the decision, and asserted his ability to defeat any colored man of his weight in America. The concluding set-to was between nan of his weight in America. The concluding series was served John Spencer, an undefeated middle-weight, and Tom Kelly, of the Fourth ward. Kelly forced the fighting in the first 3 rounds, but weakened in the final bout, and was quickly defeated by Jack Porter, the well-known gambler of Chicago, had a "run in" with Jim Collins, the feather-weight boxer, who recently fought Tommy Warren, at Minneapolis. Porter was dropped at the Theatre Comique, but was met again later at a saloon and a man named Deyoe then had a dispute, and it culminated in Porter striking and knocking Deyoe down. Collins went to his cording to the pugilist's statement Porter then stabbed him in the en ran upstairs to his room, followed by Collins, who arm. #### George J. Smith,

The short-stop of the Brooklyn Club, hails from Pitts burg, Pa., and made his first appearance on the diamond in 1877 as pitcher of the Hunter team, an amateur organization of that city. He continued with the Hunter Club for four successive seasons; in 1879 and 1880 short-stopping, and also occupying third base at times. Smith joined the Altoona Club in 1881 as short-stop, and remained with it until it disbanded, May 31, 1884, after a brief and inglorious existence in the Union Association. He was then engaged by the Cleveland Club, covering second base until Glasscock seceded, when he was shifted to short-stop. His record in 1884 was a noteworthy one, he having the best fielding average in the short-stop's position in both the Union Association and National League. From the Clevelands he went into the Brooklyn Club, and in that club's team during 1885 he made an enviable record for himself as a short-stop, his work surpassing hat of any player who had previously filled the posttion for the Brooklyns. He distinguished himself Aug. 6 by putting out four men and assisting nine times without an error. He is remarkably active, an earnest worker for his side, and has but few equals in picking up grounders on the run.

Barkley has been finding the ball in great shape this season.

Charley Sweeney proved a failure in Syracuse and was given the grand bounce.

The Chicagos were greatly chagrined over the style in which they were handled in the East.

Radbourne made both the Chicago and Detroit clubs bite the dust when they faced him in Boston.

The Atlantas are again on the war-path, and are raising bavoc with the Southern League clubs.

The two Smiths are doing great work at short stop, and it is a difficult matter to tell which is the better. Blg Dan Brouthers keeps on pounding the ball just as

There is no use in talking. Lew Dickerson can't let the old stuff alone, and Syracuse dropped him on that account. The style in which Charley Bennett is catching this season makes the other crack catchers turn green with envy.

Ned Cuthbert ought to be given a trial at umpiring, and he would soon have this sinecure idea knocked out of his head.

The 18 to 0 game in Pittsburg made the Brooklyns feel very sorrowful, and they returned to their hotel with heavy hearts. It is claimed that Joe Sommers is playing for his release. He had better keep an eye peeled or he will get the black list instead. Larry Corcoran has been returned to the New Yorks, as Mike Scanlon did not think he could keep pace with the Washingtons. The Detroits have been besmeared with blind luck this season, as they have not been shut out in a single game out of over seventy. There is more than a slight possibility that there are at least five clubs in the League that can make the St. Louis Browns cry quits.

The "Hustling" Dan O'Leary is not one of the kind to get left, and it will be but a short time till he bobs up again on top of the heap.

The Brooklyn scorers are getting a pretty bad ripping throughout the West for the style in which they work in the interest of the home club.

"Silver" Flint is not slamming the ball around to the bases this season with his old-time vigor. Age is beginning to get in its big work.

Terry, Terry, Oh, yes, Terry. Why Terry is the fellow that used to pitch for the Brooklyns. Now an exploded phenomenal I believe they call him.

It is to be hoped that the American Association clubs have had a belly full of conflicting dates, as they have been the heaviest sufferers from the confliction.

The Athletic management are now beginning to weep over the $750 they are giving to McGarr, as the latter is by no means what he was cracked up to be.

There are many hungry eyes watching the movements of Murphy, of the Boston Blues, as he gives promise of panning out one of the heaviest batters in the country.

Relating to the efficacy of the Police Gazette as an advertising medium, we enclose you herewith envelope which contained reply to our "Ad" from Fyzabad, Oude, East Indies, via Bombay, London, and

Yours etc., SAN MATEO MED. Co.

Oswego, N. Y., July 30th, 1886.
Business fair, no let up on foreign orders, and by the way, we trust you will pardon the 1 berty of our making a suggestion concerning foreign orders. We receive every week more or less foreign postage stamps, which are useless to us as we cannot dispose of them. They come from every country, and we are put to the trouble and expense of returning them. We know all the advertisers in the GAZETTE are put to the same inconvenience, and as foreign orders are so plenty would it not be a good idea to advise (at the head of your advertising columns) that foreign remittances be made by Post Office order in all cases that they can be so made. Three foreign orders all containg stamps, (as per envelopes enclosed) were received by us in one mail.

OFFICE OF CHICAGO SPECIALTY Co.)

THE CONTINENTAL NOVELTY CO., 106 Strand, LONDON, W. C. July 13, 1885.

We are the largest photograph publishers in Europe. We advertise in every country where the English language is spoken. Our experience with American papers is Police Gazette first—rest nowhere. Our advertising agent will forward you fresh order when sending out our American advertisements.

CONTINENTAL NOVELTY CO.

In an interview at Rochester, on the 17th of July, Mr. G. W. Archer, of the Archer Mig. Cu., of "Barber Chairs" said: "We are perfectly satisfied with the advertising columns of the GAZETTE. Our advertisement brings an immense number of inquiries, and in our experience of newspaper advertising the GAZETTE is the only paper that has shown practical results. When our contract runs out we shall not abandon the use of the GAZETTE."

Oswego, N. Y., July 19. 1885.

Our returns from our GAZETTE card are all we could ask, and we consider $1 per line in your paper cheap advertising when its circulation is taken into consideration. Our orders are not now confined to the United States. European and South American orders, though at first they surprised us, are now very common occurrences.

Your paper is a splendid advertising medium. I get more replies from it than any of the papers in which my advertisement has been inserted. This much in the way of a prelude. Yours. etc.,
J. L. STEVENS, M. D.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Aug. 17, 1885.

DEAR SIR—We have had on our list eight papers claiming the largest circulation in America, but by referring to our books we find that we have received from advertisements inserted in the POLICE GAZETTE twelve times as many cash orders, and thirty times the number of inquiries received from any three of our other papers combined. This speaks well for your paper, and consequently we have decided to drop some of our other papers and put our money in the GAZETTE.

JEWELERS.

NEW WATCH! JUST OUT!

The above cut represents my fine, new, imitation gold Hunting-Case Watch. The cases are made of a metal that resembles lek. GOLD: they are not polished, but are ENGINE TURNED, as it is called. They are also artistically engraved. They are finished with the best substitute for genuine gold ever discovered, and even experts are puzzled to tell that they are not SOLID GOLD. They have the celebrated anchor lever movement compensation balance, full-jeweled, and have the appearance of a $75 WATCH. Being accurate time keepers they are suitable for use on railroads, steamers and all other places where a good, serviceable watch is required.

MEDICAL.

Sufferers from Nervous Debility, Youthful Indiscretions, Lost Manhood,

BE YOUR OWN PHYSICIAN!

Many men, from the effects of youthful imprudence have brought about a state of weakness that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease, and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever being suspected, they are doctored for everything but the right one. Notwithstanding the many valuable remedies that medical science has produced for the relief of this class of patients, none of the ordinary modes of treatment effect a cure. During our extensive college and hospital practice we have experimented with and discovered new and concentrated remedies. The accompanying prescription is offered as a certain and speedly cure, as hundreds of cases in our practice have been restored to perfect health by its use after all other remedies failed. Perfectly pure ingredients must be used in the preparation of this prescription.

Ext. leptandra, 2 scruples.

Glycerin, q. s.

Make 60 pills. Take 1 pill at 3 p. m., and another on going to bed. In some cases if will be necessary for the patient to take two pills at bedtime, making the number three a day. This remedy is adapted to every condition of nervous debility and weakness in either sex, and especially in those cases resulting from improdence. The recuperative powers of this restorative are truly astonishing, and its use continued for a short time changes the languid, debilitated, nerveless condition to one of renewed life and vigor.

As we are constantly in receipt of letters of inquiry relative to this remedy, we would say to those who would prefer to obtain it from us, by remitting $1, a securely sealed package containing $0 pills, carefully compounded, will be sent by return mail from our private laboratory, or we will iturnish 6 packages, which will cure most cases, for $5.
